

Once upon a time, a little mouse named Pip lived in a cozy hole in a big kitchen. Pip was very hungry. He smelled sweet, yellow cheese on a wooden table. Pip crept out of his hole. He ran across the cold floor. He looked up at the high table. It was too high for him to jump. Pip saw a tall glass near the table leg. He had an idea. He rolled the glass close to the table. He climbed up the glass like a small ladder. Then, he hopped onto the table. The cheese was right in front of him. Pip took a big, happy bite. He felt proud because he solved his problem. He climbed back down safely and ran home with a full tummy.
